Pioneer Services Representatives Develop Deployment Checklist for Military Families

02.07.07, 4:09 PM ET

With so much going on before a military deployment—the preparation, the training, the loving goodbyes—it is easy to see how seemingly and separately "small" details that go with deployment may slip through the cracks. Whether administrative, legal or financial, there are a number of tasks military families need to complete before the deployment date.

Military spouses, retired service members, and 20 years of experience working with the military community helped Pioneer Services to compile a list of those sometimes-forgotten tasks that can make deployment go easier. Entitled "A pre-deployment checklist for military families," the article can be found at www.pioneermilitarylending.com.

"We wanted to give service members a comprehensive checklist of things to do before deployment," said Karen Von Der Bruegge, chief marketing officer for Pioneer Services. Von Der Bruegge, who grew up on military bases throughout the world, has seen the stress firsthand. "Having all of these housekeeping matters resolved can make this time of great anxiety and uncertainty much easier. And the effort to organize and manage your legal and financial issues can wind up paying huge dividends during post-deployment as well."

Helping make deployment easier for the men and women of the Armed Forces is just another way that Pioneer Services Representatives enhance the quality of life for military families. Celebrating their 75th year in the financial services industry, Pioneer Services provides responsible financial services and education that our service members deserve. Through a network of offices and on the Internet, Pioneer Services Representatives offer financial education programs, loans, and insurance products, and support military families and communities through a variety of partnerships, programs, and sponsorships.
